

NATURALNESS

Day after day through the seasons, nature has its whims.

We have to adapt to this natural irregularity by imagining our menus.

The planet is hurting its climate, in the face of this, the cook must be aware and an actor in reducing his ecological footprint. Our work speaks to our commitment.

Reflection

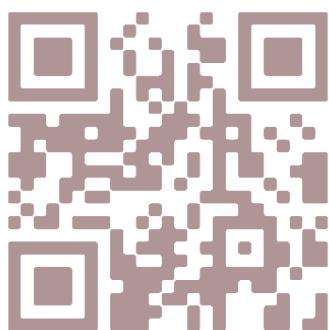

After this long absence the time has come to regain control of it's time, his space, his mind, to devote ourselves to the essentials and this is what we would like to share with you through our dishes.

Relearn to live little but live better, get back to basics, do better with less.
Happiness is not to have what you want but to desire what you have.

Having been in contact with nature during all this containment allowed me to recharge my batteries. Living at the rhythm of nature gives us time to be with ourselves.

Preserving nature is therefore not only a whim of a sweet dreamer in love with flowers and birds but a matter of survival for man.
